

The Time Table of History

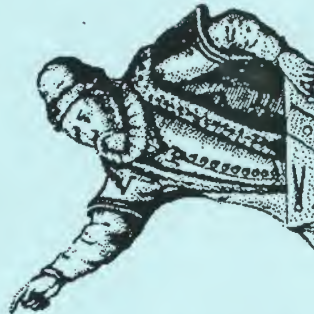

History in three-dimensional hypermedia

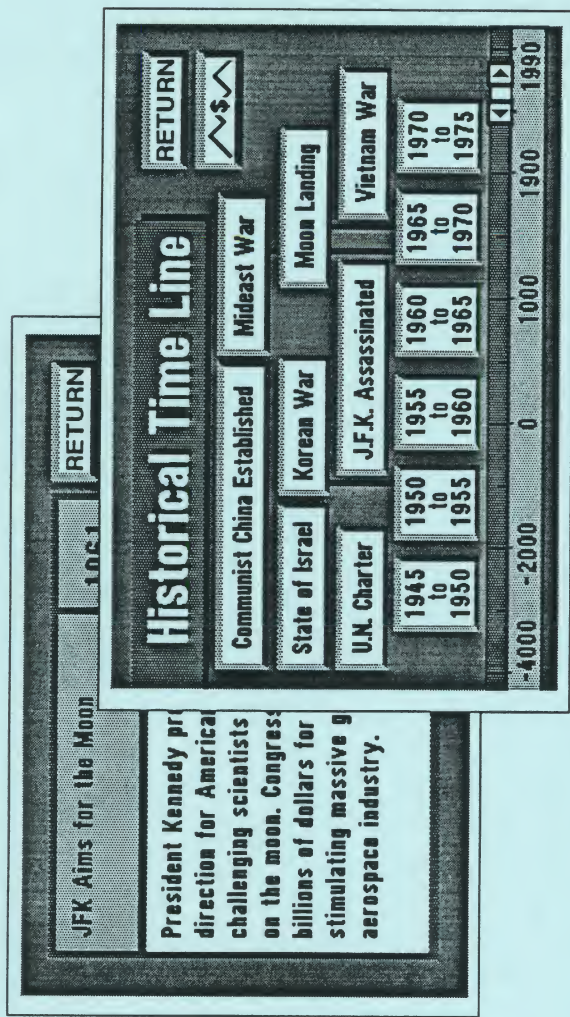

The TIME TABLE OF HISTORY is the first literary work created explicitly for Hypermedia to be delivered on CD-ROM. It is the product of hundreds of hours of research and design by XIPHIA'S writers, artists, and programmers. The most challenging task has been to reflect the mysterious linkages of cause and effect throughout history. The Time Table meets this challenge with the help of a specially designed search technology, and a carefully designed system of strategic "key words."

The inaugural edition of the series, The TIME TABLE OF SCIENCE AND INNOVATION™, was first published in Summer 1988, and is updated annually with new stories and improved graphics, sounds, and multimedia links.

Now, Xiphias is proud to introduce an exciting new title in the series: the TIME TABLE OF BUSINESS, POLITICS AND MEDIA™. We have built up both titles to include more than 6000 stories each. From the Big Bang to the superconductor, from the Trojan Horse to Desert Shield, the Time Table marks key events in the history of the world around us, and our struggle to understand it.

"The Time Table of Science and Innovation from Xiphias is an example of CD-ROM information storage as it should be."
—Video Computing, January/February 1989

"The Xiphias Time Table is an impressive research tool. By harnessing the power of the computer, it provides youngsters with an interactive learning environment unavailable with conventional encyclopedias. By incorporating high-quality, audiovisual materials to supplement text references, it entertains as well as educates."

—Carol Holzberg, Ph.D., "School Library Media Activities Monthly," December, 1990.

"I really like [the 1990 version's] new features and how it works so smoothly. I took it home last night, and my 10 year old son didn't want me to bring it back to the store this morning."

—George Hamrah, President, Personal Computer Resources
